The river is normally higher and swifter in the spring and our white water raft and canoe trips will have you laughing and screaming from beginning to end. The Delaware always has more than enough water for all river trips and the summer's warmer air and water temperatures will invite you into its crystal clear waters for swimming and snorkeling, then back to the banks for some tanning and picnicking time.

Highways and waterways are uncongested in the fall and some river runners name autumn as the finest river season. Every trip is accompanied by shorelines filled with brilliant foliage.
